

Revealing the New Arctic

Credit: NASA

A CLIMATE CHANGE COMMUNICATION WORKSHOP WITH ANDY REVKIN OF THE NEW YORK TIMES

Wednesday, 16 December 2015, 3:00-4:30pm
San Francisco Marriott Marquis, Nob Hill C&D Rooms
Preregister here: <http://bit.ly/1MWBPUk>

Renowned environmental journalist Andy Revkin will lead workshop participants in an exploration of the process and importance of finding creative outlets for Arctic science, stories, and images.

PRESENTATIONS BY:

Brendan Kelly, Study of Environmental Arctic Change
"Inverted pyramids and extroverted science"

Lawrence Hamilton, University of New Hampshire
"Polar facts and polarization"

Walt Meier, NASA Goddard
"Communicating Arctic sea ice observations and predictions, guided by science and society"

Jennifer Francis, Rutgers University
"Sticky winter weather: Does it take two to tango?"

Mia Bennett, University of California Los Angeles
"Perspectives on Arctic blogging"

Marco Tedesco, Columbia University
"The POLAR Seeds project: Communicating melting in Greenland through sonification"

Till Wagner, Scripps Institution of Oceanography
"Frozen Relic: Arctic Works"

ORGANIZED BY THE STUDY OF ENVIRONMENTAL ARCTIC CHANGE

<https://www.arcus.org/search-program>